SEVERAL IMPORTANT ADVAN-
CES IN WAGES.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 15.—The National Federation of Canners and Packers, formed here today, adopted resolutions asking the president of the United States to give some attention to the advisability of placing American canned goods upon the reduced tariff list for foreign countries, and requesting "that all possible be done to bring about the open-door policy in the Orient for the speedy development of American commerce and trade."

After a conference between Dr. Wiley, representing the United States government, and a committee from the Wholesale Grocers' association, a mutually protective guarantee has been agreed upon. The nature of the guarantee is as follows:

Assurance of Purity.
"When the guarantee comes into general use the buyers should look on all cans for these words: 'Guaranteed under the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906.' Also for the serial number thereon, which indicates to them that the manufacturer will give a sworn guarantee."

"With the filing of the declaration with the government the canner gets without charge a serial number which he is permitted to put on his cans. This number, the buyer that he is getting an absolutely pure article of food."

ADMIRAL BERESFORD HAS NOTHING TO SAY

Mexico City, Feb. 15.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who arrived here this afternoon, when asked by the Associated Press as to the truth of the published statements that he had refused the command of the channel because of the lack of the admiralty in reducing the fleet, said:

"You may say to the world that I can neither affirm nor deny the story at this time. This is a matter between the admiralty and me, and the end of it will be made known when I return to England. It would be highly improper for me to comment on such a question at this time."

The admiral will remain here several days in order to take the necessary steps to prove his brother's will.

PICQUART RAISED STORM OF APPLAUSE

Paris, Feb. 15.—In the chamber of deputies today M. Lefebvre complained that the people of the Department of the Meuse, who would have to sustain the first shock in a war with Germany, were unfairly treated by the activity of the Germans upon the frontier between Luxembourg and Montmédy. General Picquart, minister of war, raised a storm of applause when he replied that if the Germans were violating the neutral territory of the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, France would take measures to meet the situation.

Nelson Receives Wife's Frigid
Extremities in Small of His Back.

EXCRUCIATING TESTIMONY

DEFENDANT IN DIVORCE CASE TELLS HIS STORY.

Is a pair of cold feet planted in the small of a shivering man's back to be classed as a material issue in divorce proceedings?

This question was raised in the suit for divorce brought by Cella McCready Nelson against her husband David A. Nelson, now being heard in Judge Armstrong's court.

It came as a result of a question by Judge Burton, attorney for the plaintiff, during his cross-examination of Nelson as to why on a certain occasion he had left the common law and betaken himself to another room.

"Because my wife's feet were cold and she insisted on putting them on my back to warm them," replied Nelson. A half-subdued titter went around the courtroom and in a flash everybody was all attention. Another question brought out the fact that the feet were "quite cold and very unpleasant."

This was too much for the dignity of lawyers and spectators alike. Judge Burton made a superhuman effort to regain his composure and by way of gaining time said to the defendant: "I see you smile. Would you mind telling the court why?" Judge Henderson for the defendant was on the point of objecting, but the court forestalled him.

"You are smiling yourself, Judge," said Judge Armstrong, and Judge Burton and everyone else in the room had to admit that they were.

A Different Humor.
"You were not angry at this," continued Judge Burton, "just in the same good humor you are now?" In reply to which Nelson intimated that perhaps his humor was of a slightly different kind to the present.

"And your wife told you that any man who would not let his wife warm her feet on his back when they were cold, that hers were should be strung up?" Nelson replied, "Yes, but I do not want to say anything against my wife, she is still my wife and I do not wish to humiliate her in any way." This closed the incident.

Another little passage at arms came off between Judge Burton and the defendant in reference to the defendant's habit of referring to his wife as Cella during the proceedings.

Judge Burton: "Did you ever call her Mrs. Nelson?"
Ans. "Yes."

Q. "When was this?"
Ans. "To Judge Henderson."

Q. "When was this?"
To which Mr. Nelson had no reply to offer and finally said that he did not remember. A few more questions elicited the fact that Nelson has for some time past, or ever since their marriage, entertained a marked objection to either addressing or referring to his wife as Mrs. Nelson.

Tried to Be Kind.
Nelson took the stand at the commencement of yesterday afternoon's proceedings for cross-examination by Judge Burton. Referring to a certain day when the two took a drive together which was mentioned by Mrs. Nelson as one of the occasions when her husband was "kind," usually unkind to her, he testified that he was not excited and used no violent language when he was talking to her. He denied absolutely that on that occasion he had told her she lied.

"You have always been kind to your wife," suggested Judge Burton.

"I won't say always, but I have always tried to be kind to her," replied Nelson.

Incredulous Mother-in-Law.
In the matter of the Wilson hotel episode he denied that his wife begged him not to go. Admitted that she raised an objection to his taking his grips away during daylight hours, as a result of which he sent a messenger for them. He stated that he did not call his mother-in-law an "old hag," and that his wife refused to do so to the Wilson and join him, although he had telephoned to her three times, asking her to do so.

Next day his wife brought his lunch to Jackson school and later called on him with a buggy when school was closed for the day. He then went back to his mother-in-law's house and remained there for thirteen days, or until the two moved into their own home. There was no serious trouble there, and nothing very serious after the move. He recalled an occasion when he had occupied a separate room from his wife on account of a quarrel about the telephone, but stated that he returned to his wife's room at between 10 and 11 o'clock at night, and not 5 o'clock in the morning, as claimed by the other side.

During this recital amusement and incredulity of the deepest kind were pictured on the faces of mother-in-law and wife's friends in court. The cross-examination closed with a number of questions relating to the meeting between the two at the Kenyon hotel prior to their marriage. Nelson stating that sometimes his wife met him there alone.

Mrs. M. L. Cleason, sister of the defendant, and a resident of Portland, Ore., then took the stand. Upon direct examination she testified that she had known Mrs. Nelson since July 20, when she and her husband came to spend their honeymoon with Mrs. Casey at La Grande, Ore., where she was then living, that the two seemed very happy together and that Mrs. Nelson gained two pounds in weight.

Nelson's Finances.

On direct examination Nelson then testified that he owned no stock in the Oregon theatre and had no property in his own right other than a house on the west side worth about $1,200 and mortgaged for $800. Said that the house in which the two had made their home was the property of his mother, although he had always paid the taxes and the interest on the mortgage. He said he received $100 a month salary and believed he had less than $25 in his pocket in the bank. Stated that he owed $15, payable next March, besides a further sum of between $50 and $60 and about $50 for small debts around town. Some time was spent in detailing the various circumstances leading up to his coming into possession of the property on the west side, and it was shown that at one time the property he claims to be his mother's was owned by himself. Cross-examination on these points failed to shake the testimony. The hearing was then continued until 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Five other witnesses for the defense were examined. W. F. Spiers, a telephone man, testified regarding the trouble over the placing of a telephone in the house. Miss Olive Ferris and Mrs. Rose Storrer, teachers in the city schools, both testified as to how happy Mrs. Nelson had told them she had been during her honeymoon. They told Mr. Nelson had told them she had been during her honeymoon. They told Mr. Nelson had told them she had been during her honeymoon. They told Mr. Nelson had told them she had been during her honeymoon.

Game of "Freeze-Out."
During Mr. Nelson's direct examination he entered a general denial to the statements of cruelty made by his wife and through the fissure toward the contact. Several days ago a nice body of ore was run during this time. It was cut out by a "horse," however, and for several feet no ore was in sight. On Tuesday night the ore began to come in again and it was evident the contact was also at hand. This has now been proven and the indications all are that a big body of rich rock is available at the point mentioned.

F. A. HEINZE ARRIVES FROM BUTTE CAMP

F. A. Heinze, the big copper mining operator, came down from Butte yesterday morning to look after business interests on this end of the line, and will probably be here for several days. While it was impossible to obtain a statement from him for publication, it is pretty well understood that he is planning to greatly enlarge his operations in this region, both in a mining and smelting way. There is the question of smelter removal and enlargement to be considered and, if "ru-mor" is to be credited to him, he is planning to break into Ely and Park City, as well. He is already in control of the Bingham Ohio Copper company, and a mill and plant of 2,000 tons initial capacity is now being built to handle the ores from the latter property at the mouth of the Bingham Consolidated company's Mascotte tunnel.

Uiah is pleased to see him planning for the future in this section and it is certain that every opportunity will be afforded him to go ahead. He has already shown his faith in Bingham. In Thirde and the Deep Creek country, and if he wants a slice of Park City, Ely or any other camp in which Utah operators exercise any particular influence, there is little or no doubt but what easy sailing will be offered him. Local mining men all have an admiration for his push and energy and expressions heard on all sides are of the "get in and let us help you" order.

ANOTHER STRIKE IN UTAH-TREASURE HILL

Another new shoot of fine ore was encountered in the Utah-Treasure Hill company's property at Park City on Tuesday afternoon, President William Bingham went out to camp to see what it amounted to. He returned Thursday evening with samples and yesterday returns on the rock were had from the assayer. The certificate denoted the presence of 50 per cent lead, 15.6 ounces silver and $2.30 in gold per ton. Three feet of ore was in evidence when Mr. Perago reached the mine and it was considerably wider than that when he left. There was four feet of it yesterday and it was being sacked for shipment so rapidly that the promise was made that a carload of it would be on the market early in the coming week. To tell where the strike was made it is necessary to explain that a forty-five-foot mine from the tunnel level was put down in the fissure all the way, or practically all the way in fine ore. From the bottom an incline drift was started
